Grantee/Collaborative Description	CASA is a Community Development Corporation founded in 1988 in response to the housing needs of Oregon farm workers and their families. This collaborative has nine participant agencies. Each handles outreach, account opening, case management, and homeownership service delivery. Agencies include housing development groups and a microenterprise training program. Eight banks have waived IDA participant account fees. Four of them are also supporting financial education for participants. They include: Citizens Bank, Mid-Valley Bank, Siuslaw Bank, Umpqua Bank, and others. Mid-Valley Bank is holding the reserve account. Nonfederal matching funds are from foundation sources and Oregon Housing and Community Services.
